Sources for

“If laughter is the best medicine...then its time to utilize nitrous oxide as self-administered analgesia in childbirth”
Prepared by Kerry Dixon

- Baby Nikau and Mum Izzy [Personal photograph taken in New Zealand]. (2010).
- Baby Rowan and parents [Personal photograph taken in New Zealand]. (2010).
- Baby Widemu King with parents [Personal photograph taken in New Zealand]. (2010).
- Baby Zane [Personal photograph taken in Tuatapere, New Zealand]. (2010).
• Black & White drawing of Klikovich's machine. (2009). Retrieved from http://www.duodecimlehti.fi/web/guest/hakuj;jsessionid=5B274AF5352214F0F1F9433DA7A80D04?p_p_id=Article_WAR_DL6_Articleportlet&p_p_lifecycle=0&_Article_WAR_DL6_Articleportlet_p_frompage=uusinnumero&_Article_WAR_DL6_Articleportlet_viewType=viewArticle&Article_WAR_DL6_Articleportlet_tunnus=duo98052

• Dames, B. L., & McGlothlin, J. D. (1994). Controlling Exposures to Nitrous Oxide During Anesthetic Administration (USA, Center for Disease Control & Prevention, The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH)). Retrieved from http://www.cdc.gov/niosh/docs/94-100/

• Quechelle666's channel (Director). (2010). Gas and Air [Motion picture on Youtube]. United Kingdom.

• Thomas, L. (2014, June 8). [This is going to hurt: Shortly after nine o'clock, Mrs Thomas receives an epidural while sucking on a gas pump]. Retrieved from http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2652317/Mother-shares-pictures-posing-doctors-suffering-contractions-having-epidural-12-hour-labour-Twitter.html

